

PATIALA PEG

THE STORY OF PATIALA PEG

A Peg as we discern is a measure of a drink poured in a glass and is truly a drinker's construct, usually of 30ml or 60ml. As we help set the mood and accent the experience with flair, let us take you back in time to the rich Indian heritage, perfectly paired with whiskey and sports - a lifestyle that was embodied by the erstwhile Punjab royalty.

This is a story of Pegs and Pleasures. Once upon a time there lived a magnificent Maharaja who belonged to the princely state of Patiala with a fine affinity for opulence. He was passionate about precious jewellery, owned a fleet of rare luxury cars and was in love with polo sport and his team, as part of his celebrated lifestyle.

During one of his Royal tours he happened to encounter the Irish Viceroy's pride and they shared their mutual love for drinking and horses, expertly tending to polo. So the team was sent a royal invitation for a friendly match. To equal the strength of the Irish Team, the captain of the home-team made the visitors supremely sozzled by pouring the double measure of whiskey, each time on the evening preceding the game. The heavy Irish heads lost the match the next day to the gracious and hospitable Maharaja, who rightly said that 'In Patiala our pegs are larger'. That is how the Patiala Peg was born.

Strictly for the tasteful elite, Patiala Peg at The Imperial artfully presents this winning story paired with the simple pleasures of drinking whiskey in a larger peg of 120ml. It is a bespoke bar and the only one in the capital serving the larger peg born out of this friendly polo match, a symbol of Patialan hospitality.

The Royal bar has a dark, well-appointed swish environment ideal for whiskey lovers. Arguably the only bar in Delhi with a unique history and tradition, it takes one back to some of the fascinating views from the life of this glitzy Indian Maharaja.
